

Something Important was Forgotten

By: Edwin Fisher

Yesterday my wife picked up our four year old son from day care. When he got into the he forgot to give everyone a hug. No wonder Jesus loved children. I can't help but wonder what would happen if we showed that kind of desire to show those around us that we care for them?

What would happen if we stopped, and went back inside to show those whom we love that we care? It wasn't that our son had forgotten some toy or some other possession. It wasn't because someone owed him money. It was because in his little four year old mind he had forgotten to say good bye, I love you.

What would happen if the most important priority in our lives was to stop and say goodbye and I love you? Would we blindly rush from one point to the next, missing the opportunity to witness to someone whom is lost? Would ignore our children because we're trying to get all the yard work done? Would we continue to neglect reading God's Word, or praying? I wonder what would happen when showing someone else that we care was what is most important to us.

I wonder...
